The East Side Connection to Your Family's Legal Needs

Perhaps you're nervous. Scared. Trying to contain emotions that are alternating between fighting back tears and burning with anger, humiliation, or guilt. Perhaps this is the first time you've ever had to walk through the door of an attorney's office. Then it's a good thing that you found your way here. As you try to settle yourself down, it helps that you're greeted by a person with a welcoming smile — someone who is reaching out to you with compassion. You sit. There's a giant portrait on the wall; it's of the late founder, Jacob Michael Femminineo Sr. You're told that he not only provided the building blocks to form this respectable law firm, but he also left footprints for his two sons to follow. "He didn't hand them the keys to the door, either," you're told. His sons had to work to create a name for themselves and carry the family name forward. You feel comforted.

There are seven attorneys within the office who handle domestic (family), criminal, civil, and estate law. Partner David C. Femminineo, one of the sons, concentrates on the legal matters involving personal injury. He is a personal injury specialist who has made it his personal goal to provide every client with closure and justice.

But today it's the other son you've come to see. The one who can help you through your divorce.

Jacob Michael Femminineo Jr. (Jake) and Katherine Krysak handle family law. This is a skilled duo that successfully helps people navigate their way through a divorce and all the accompanying issues, including parenting time, support and post-judgment concerns, adoptions, and the other difficulties families face. Jake is persistent, seasoned, and infused with the same work ethic as his late father. Katherine is a young, energetic family law attorney. Jake is succinct and straight-talking, someone who won't sugarcoat the situation; Katherine is equally honest, but with a softer, more caring touch. Both are genuine and dedicated. Both understand what is at stake as you go forward. "We like to focus on resolution and settlements," Jake says. "We are a firm that will be realistic with you as we look out for your best interests, but we will also battle when compromise is no longer an option." That means bracing clients for divorce's unexpected surprises. "For example, it's important to prioritize what you need because you won't necessarily get everything you want. There are complex issues in marriage, especially long-term ones, and we strive toward resolving the matter efficiently and with fairness."

"We're here for you, not only to put the legal aspects of your divorce in place," Katherine adds. "Our goal is to help you put the pieces of your life back together." What will your life be like once you are on your own? How will you care for your children and pay your bills? "This is a difficult time and we will provide you the guidance you need, even after your divorce."

The attorneys in the firm are professional, yet they are human. They maintain a high level of communication with their clients and are responsive to their needs. This is your safe haven. A place where you can cry, you can laugh, you can be yourself. It's a family firm that caters to family needs.

Femminineo Attorneys prides itself on the satisfaction of its clients. When clients walk through the door that have been referred by family, friends, neighbors, or acquaintances — it demonstrates the resounding purpose of the firm. It is proof that these brothers have carved their own path in the community, while ensuring that their late father's leadership and legacy will carry on.

Femminineo Attorneys is an east side law firm working in the tri-county area, handling family matters primarily in Macomb County.
